We are not only to have the Fair (and the officials promise a very good one), Cabinet, many visiting military companies, and other attractions, all combining to make proved by the president. the week a most exceptionable one in our history. Nearly everybody now is employed. It is hard to find a man not busy as a bee. There are few idlers-except those who are so by regular profession—and the desire is universal that those who come to visit us shall have a truly hospitable welcome and see the city at best advantage.

To that end much work is being done.
